From this we can see that zero crossings(percussions),mfcc,spectral centroid(frequency difference) , chroma(preference of musical notes), and rms energy(classical more peaceful) have a shift in density plots, which can be used to differentiate the audio

More features with such differences will be useful to improve accuracy

Neural-networks can be used to improve the predictions